

NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

From the National Era.

FORGIVENESS.

My heart was heavy, for its trust had been abused; its kindness answered with foul wrong;

So, turning gloomily from my fellow-men,

One Summer Sabbath day I strolled among the green woods of the village burial place,

Where, pondering over the silent bier, I may be buried, leaving the largest cedars.

OFFICIAL. LIST OF LETTERS.

ADVISED IN THE TRADES & SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS.

1. And so far as I can find.

And all advertisements made under the orders of the Post Master-General, in a newspaper or newspapers, of letters intended for any Post Office, shall be inserted in the paper or papers, and the advertising may be limited, leaving the largest circulation.

For the last and lowest, and how soon or late,

Wounds and hands folded over a still heart,

Pass the green threshold of our common grave,

Whither all footsteps tend, whence none depart.

Avoided for myself, and pitying my race,

Our common sorrow, like a mighty wave,

Swept all my pride away, and, trembling, I forgave!

EXECUTION OF TURNER AND HAMILTON.—On

Tuesday the above-named unhappy men suffered the last penalty of the law. The concourse of spectators, we are informed, was the largest ever seen in this city, on any occasion. This fact speaks very badly for the state of public morals. What had come in from the various parts of the country, many of whom were from a distance of twenty to thirty miles.

It may be the fact that the schoolmaster is abroad; but last Tuesday's concourse appeared to give no indication that there was any such person present. How many men who have left the Christian religion preached, we can not know what punitif, can find gratification in witnessing an execution, is more than we can comprehend. Of course we feel certain, a larger proportion of them derive their income from the practice of law, and it is for the greater part of the opportunity, may be considered as having given up the first elementary lesson in art of shedding human blood.

We are informed that hundreds of parents, on this occasion, condoned their children to the execution, and that among the number present were even observed some schoolmasters. Were we School Trustees, should we not be bound to do the same? The gravity of such a crime; for whatever the rest of the world may say or think, we cannot look upon the witnessing of the hanging of a fellow being in any other light than a crime. We would brand it as a crime, if we could; but its prevalence makes us feel well convinced that in so doing we should be rendering to society a very important and essential service.

THE VESSELS SEIZED AT NEWPORT.—The vessels which were seized at Newport, under the laws, under process from the United States District Court for the district of Rhode Island, have been stripped and hauled into dock. The crew of three of the vessels have returned to their homes in West New England, and will be with them until their release, for negotiating with the intention of claiming a bounty from the Government for the time so employed, they were in fact devoting a part of the registered time to mackerel fishing. It remains to be seen whether the owners will be compelled to pay the amount due for the authorities to wait until the claim for the bounty was made. The course of the authorities at Newport, however, goes to show that the matter is a serious one, which has probably been well considered.
